The <threads> element can be used to configure the number of threads that CruiseControl can use simultaneously to build projects. This is done through the count attribute. If this element (or one of its parent elements) is not specified, this defaults to 1. This means that only one project will be built at a time.

Your firm action is needed now more than ever, as we are locked in a staring contest with Daiwa. Chaining us to their service centres by refusing to sell the magnetic fluid, certain types of drag lubes, and several parts of some reels can't stand or be rewarded (for details check this post). I can't think of a good reason for these decisions, but Daiwa is welcome to tell us if there were any.
